Mango Languages ® is a language learning service. It is accessed using a public library card.

The first step is to go to your city’s public library and get a card. Make sure to ask if Mango Languages ® is a resource offered by your library.

For users in Adair, Cherokee, Delaware, McIntosh, Muskogee, or Sequoyah county in Oklahoma, go to <http://www.eodls.org/research/> to access the list of resources. For other users, follow directions given by your public library.

Invest in yourself. Be a lifelong learner.

Libraries are the center of research and learning, whether that means gathering knowledge for “do it yourself” projects, reading up on a personal interest, or improving job skills.

In addition to exploring the databases below also check out our handy subject guides.

Clicking the language name will take you to that language's landing page, where the lessons can be accessed.

The landing page for the Cherokee language course. At the top is a dark navigation bar with the Cherokee icon, the text "Cherokee >", and links for "LEARN" and "TOOLS". On the right of the bar are "Support", a notification bell, and the user name "julehisanvhi". The main content area is divided into three sections. On the left, "Main Units" lists "1 Cherokee". The center section, "Learn Cherokee", shows "1 Cherokee" with a "0% Complete" status. It features a progress bar for "Chapter 1: Greetings, Gratitude, Goodbyes" with five numbered steps (1-5) and a "Recap" button. Below this is a link to "See Conversational and Grammar Goals". The bottom section shows "Chapter 2: Getting to Know You". On the right, a "Review" section includes a lightbulb icon, a progress bar with a star, and a green checkmark with the text "Caught up with review. Come back tomorrow."
